For Monday, July 29
MONDAY'S ASTROLOGICAL forecast is for a very lively and eventful day in which there may be some sudden and devastating event, probably upsetting many ordinary plans or normal ways of living. With discretion this may not prove destructive.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of sudden and unusual happenings, which may prove disrupting unless handled with much poise, wisdom and discretion. A child born on this day may be extremely versatile and talented, with many abilities of an unusual or subtle nature, springing perhaps from keen intuitions or other extra sensory perceptions.

Funeral Preparedness

The Lesson of Preparedness has been taught to all people. Facing facts brings steadfastness of purpose and courage.

Our Pre-arranged Funeral Plan fills a need recognized by many people. In recording his funeral wishes with us a man makes sure:

- That his plans, including the price, will be scrupulously observed.
- That others will not be called upon, at a time of sorrow and perplexity, to shoulder the task of making arrangements.
- That preparation is not obligatory.
- That he cannot be misled because our pre-arrangement agreement may be changed or cancelled at any time.

The Rule of Christ

A Sermonette By REV. W. H. KISER Pastor, Asbury-Morrill Methodist Charge.

"And of His Kingdom there shall be no end."—Luke 1:33.

DR. E. STANLEY JONES, missionary to India, said "Christianity is at the judgment bar of the world on trial for its life." This is another reiteration of the fact that there are forces in the world adverse to the spread of Christianity. The leaders of the movement have never doubted that their task was and is a momentous one. During age after age the followers of Christ have been looking toward the future, but with a realization that any attainment of a future goal necessitates active participation in the program that will eventually bring the desired victory. This dream must become a very realistic experience because the promise is "that of His Kingdom there shall be no end." The durability of this Kingdom challenges this changing world in which we live.

The Kingdom of God is made possible through the righteousness of Christ. His task is not merely to redeem human souls but to establish the Kingdom of which there shall be no end. It is the Kingdom for eternity.

It rules not by force, but by love; not by state altogether, but by motives; not by legislation, but by permeation. It is not limited to geographical localities, its ruler once said, "And I, if I be lifted up from the earth, will draw all men unto me."—John 12:32. It is for all who will accept its ideals and enter into its fellowship. It is known by the Cross, but it shall be known by the Crown. It shall be victorious over all the world. "Christ shall reign, the promise given. His day of victory is sure. We may be like the man who boasted that he did all the firm work possible on Sunday, and that his crops were as good as those of his neighbors; but the wise minister said to him, "Remember, my friend: God does not settle all of His accounts in October." The forces of the world may have their hey-day, but the day of the Lord cometh as a thief in the night. "At the name of Jesus every knee should bow, and every tongue should confess that Jesus Christ is Lord, to the glory of God the Father."—Phil. 2:10, 11.

Tying Up A Loose End

WHATEVER reasons may be given for lightening the screws on exports of petroleum products and scrap metal the effect is good. In the case of scrap iron and steel particularly a loose end of national defense has been tied up.

As the world's greatest user of steel and iron the United States is the greatest source of scrap indispensable for making high grade steel. An idea of the extent of exports of scrap iron and steel is to be had from the fact their value soared from less than eight million dollars in 1929 to 10 times that much in 1937. Japan alone that year took 1,901,202 gross tons more than this country's five other best customers combined. It has been obvious from the beginning that Japan with access to no other source of scrap iron and steel had depended heavily on the United States to prepare itself to crowd the United States out of Asia.

Many frightened men have cried out against the folly of helping to arm a warlike nation without success. The job has been done now, the United States itself must become a warlike nation to survive. It must do many things quickly decisively, to protect its interests. Certainly one of the obvious necessities is to protect its reserves of oil and steel—the two essential commodities of mechanized warfare. Insofar as possible they should be kept out of the hands of nations which threaten American interests. The legal complications entailed are for government officials to untangle; the question of policy entailed has been answered clearly by public opinion.

Hitler's High Price for Peace

IF ADOLF Hitler could be taken at his word western civilization is being saved by Nazified Germany from the most heinous monsters ever loosed upon humanity. They are the politicians who dare to raise their voices against him. All but one now stand silent in Europe either by choice or necessity. The only survivor is Winston Churchill whom Hitler hates as he has hated no one since Dr. Benes of Czechoslovakia.

As Hitler sees it such men have stood between him and peace. They have forced him to make war. Mr. Churchill is going to force him to undertake the destruction of Great Britain. If it were not for men who obstruct him in what he is determined to do he—Adolf Hitler—would be the prince of peace incarnate. This may be absurd but it is not funny. Hitler hasn't been funny for ever so long.

He the most inveterate politician of all the politicians he rails against actually believes he is right. It is unthinkable that any man so decrepit could be so gargantuan as to foment and maintain a blood bath for a continent in bad faith. Hitler may be irrational but he is not cynical. Too many observers have reported too much of his extravagant rages and interludes of gloomy introspection to permit any illusion that he talks only to hide his real intentions.

The man actually believes in peace on Germany's terms. He is so sure he is right that he can not conceive from his provincial viewpoint that another politician expressing another nation's convictions might be right too. He can see only that the other politician—or the other point of view, whoever expresses it—must be wrong because he Hitler never can be wrong. Therefore until everybody thinks the same as he does there can be no peace. This is not Hitler's fault, as he sees it but the other fellow's fault.

There can be no peace till all the other fellows have been destroyed or made to toe the line. Everything that Hitler ever has said or written has been related in one way or another to the furtherance of this conviction. He is the political prototype of the soldier who marched out of step—because all the other soldiers were wrong. By shrewdly using resentment and appeals to greed furthermore he has gained a following. Except for England he is the ruler of Europe.

Therefore England must be destroyed. That is Hitler's real decision, he knows as well as Prime Minister Churchill that the British will not consent to peace on Germany's terms as long as they retain power to fight. He is flinging himself into an emotional condition which will enable him to give the order to begin the battle he has used the same prelude to each of his fateful decisions. The sound of his words dull his doubts besides serving the useful purpose of bolstering the morale of the German people for the newest ordeal.

The battle of Britain bloody enough in its preparatory stages, is about to be brought to a climax of horror. Hitler's price of peace is too high to make war even death seem undesirable alternatives. The dignity of man can't be bought at auction.

News Behind the News

Columnist Defends His Right To Predict Future Developments in Politics.

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON July 27.—Some of my columnist colleagues have fallen into weeping over a tendency in journalism to predict the future. One of them has constantly described his own inclination to see what's coming as a weakness. Another has alliteratively alleged that prediction is a prophesy and prognostication are phooshy. There are only two of the most recent examples of a rising tendency to deride any journalistic effort to calculate beyond the past and present terms.

I think they are all wrong. Not a thinking person exists in the world today who is not making some preparation or precaution concerning tomorrow. There is not a business man worthy to be called such who is not trying to muster daily every bit of information and advice he can get concerning what is to be expected politically and economically. There is no statesman or politician in Washington who can afford to deal solely with the past and the present. His real measure of efficiency in public service may be based on his calculations of the future and what will be required then.

The fact that Mr. Roosevelt wisely anticipated the war did much to make this government and the country ready for the policies that had to be adopted swiftly when it broke. If he had also been given the wisdom to have suspected the French collapse, you can readily see how much better a national defense position this country would now have.

If prognosticating is a weakness so is thinking. If looking into the future is a sin man's cranium has been misplaced and his face should have been faced sideways or looking backward.

Predictions Ethical

I think the critics have fallen unwittingly into a mental pit dug for them by the politicians. Naturally a man in public life does not want a lot of public predictions made about what he may do or about how what he is doing may turn out. Such predictions may arouse public pressure against his purpose, may cause him to change his decision or at least annoy him. Mr. Roosevelt has frequently complained in press conferences against journalistic predictions. He calls it going out on a limb. But he never has been heard to complain about a prediction which was satisfactory to his political purposes.

Naturally the statesmen would like to have the newspapers deal only with the past acts although they themselves do not handle their own jobs that way. But I do not see why the reading public which must plan for its own future should be denied that one-third of reporting merely to keep politicians from being annoyed. I do not see what right politicians have anyway even to suggest new ideals and ethics for journalism. They are admittedly prejudiced witnesses under cross examination. Most of the bad political speculation that gets into print is due to bad prompting of reporters by the same politicians working for their own purposes.

Prophets Only Human My weeping colleagues would not think of requiring business expert columnists to restrain themselves from calculating the future. No suggestion has yet been made or ever will be made that a racing expert sent to cover the Kentucky Derby be required not to express an opinion as to whom he thinks will win. Why should politics be immune?

If my friends contend that the business racing and political writers seldom predict the winner I will agree without reservation. But that is not important to my way of thinking. If it means anything at all it only means there should be better experts but I doubt that it even means that. When a racing reporter goes to Louisville in advance of the derby and tells his readers he thinks Flashy Thinking will win in a walk, he is giving his estimation of the caliber of the entries in the race to the best of his knowledge and ability. He is presenting his estimation in the simplest possible and most easily understandable manner. That is his duty and the public's right. If a long shot happens to win the race I cannot see that it proves this type of journalism is a weakness.

All that the critics of prophecy are really saying it seems to me is that prophets are human. (Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc. reproduction in whole or in part strictly prohibited.)

Battle for Three Million Farm Votes

Map shows territory in which Republicans scored gains in 1938. It is noteworthy that most of the districts where they made the gains were in the farm belt or closely adjoining it.

By MORGAN M. BEATTY Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON July 27.—Behind the nominations of Charles McNary and Henry Wallace for vice president is a battle for 3,000,000 votes.

The master minds figure the McNary selection as the Republican way of asking soft farm states to stand fast for 1940 or even increase the Republican showing in the 1938 off-year elections.

And they figure the President wanted to run with Wallace as a Democratic push to gain back ground lost to the G.O.P. in 1938.

Here's the way the master mind have it. Between 1936 and 1938 nearly 3,000,000 votes cut loose from the Democrats early and attached themselves to the Republican party in the farm belt. The Republicans want to keep em where they are. The Democrats want to get em back.

The Vote Turned Over

The farm belt of course is a loose term. But it covers the nation's midriff lying like a half moon across the map.

Its northern limit is the Canadian border. Its bottom rests on the cotton belt. Roughly it lies between Montana and Pennsylvania. The 16 states in the belt are Montana, Wyoming, North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas, Minnesota, Iowa, Missouri, Wisconsin, Illinois, Kentucky, Michigan, Indiana, Ohio and West Virginia.

In 1936 the Roosevelt sweep carried all those states. On the average the vote was 60 per cent Democratic almost 40 per cent Republican.

But in the 1938 off-year elections, the pendulum swung much of the way back—more than half way. The Republicans got 51 per cent of the vote, the Democrats a little over 40.

The rest was scattered among Independents, Farmer-Laborites, Progressives.

The swing accounted for 2,000,000 votes. In short 2,700,000 people who voted for the Democrats in 1936 changed and voted Republican in 1938.

So assuming the vote sloughs off about 25 per cent during off-year elections both parties are going to have to fight for 3,000,000 votes or more in the farm belt. On the basis of past performance the Republicans have the inside track. Ever since 1910 off-year gains have been a harbinger of victory in the next presidential election.

In 1910 the Democrats picked up 46 new seats won a majority in congress. Then they voted in Wilson in 1912.

In 1918 the Republicans gained 26 seats took over a house majority. That foreshadowed the Harding victory in 1920.

Again in 1930 the Democrats gained 54 house seats forged into the majority column. Roosevelt won his first victory in 1932.

Republicans Gain

In the 1938 turnover the Republicans netted 80 seats in the house although they didn't reach a majority. Strangely enough nearly all of those gains were either within the farm belt states or bordered on them.

The Republicans picked up 14 governorships. Most of them were in the farm belt. All of this adds up to the fact that the farm vote may tell the tale in 1940.

Natural it was, then, that the Republicans should name Charles McNary, co-author of the McNary-Haughen farm bill, and a champion of the kind of farm legislation that gives the farmer protection similar to the tariff protection for labor and industry.

Conscription Seen Needed To Protect U S With Large Army Until Navy Can Be Expanded.

By WALTER LIPPMANN

IN ORDER to set up and administer wisely a system of compulsory military service it is necessary to understand clearly the special circumstances which have made necessary so unprecedented a measure. For until now the American people have always relied upon the principle that by maintaining an adequate navy they could do without a large army in the event of war the navy would provide a first line of defense behind which an army could be recruited trained and equipped.

This is the traditional system of American defense and the proposal to adopt conscription now is based on a widespread recognition that in the world today the old principle of American defense must be reversed instead of relying upon the navy to hold the line while an army is being raised it is now necessary to raise an army while the navy is being expanded. It is a shift from peace time conscription because the navy is not strong enough and cannot quickly enough be made strong enough to defend this country if the worst happens in Europe and in Asia.

Without I think a dissenting voice the senate has authorized the construction of another navy. If this additional navy existed or if it could be obtained in the course of the next year it would not be necessary to raise a large army or adopt conscription. This great navy could guarantee the defense of the hemisphere not only against invasion from Europe but against the subjugation of any portion of the hemisphere by means of revolutionary conspiracies. But the senators who voted to authorize this additional navy must know that no such navy can be built and launched and manned for many years to come.

2nd Navy Needed

The congress is on record as believing that another navy which does not now exist is necessary to the defense of the nation. If the other navy existed it would be used to prevent the new imperialist powers from establishing a new base of operations within the hemisphere.

Be not ashamed to say what you are not ashamed to think—(Montaigne)

Horse Naming

Ladies Take the Job Seriously and Make Mr. Fred J. E. Klees Unhappy When Opinions Differ.

By DAMON RUNYON

WE met a lady owner of race horses the other day. She had just come from a visit to the office of Fred J. E. Klees, registrar of the American Stud Book of the Jockey Club, to see why she could not have a certain name she wanted for one of her adolescent steeds. Mr. Klees is a man who passes on names for race horses.

We think the lady had gone there with some vague idea of dynamiting the premises. She is sure there is no fury like a lady owner who is denied a name she fancies for a nag. She sits up all night poring over dictionary and thesaurus and other helpful volumes and finally hits upon a monicker she deems just the thing. When it is turned down by Mr. Klees on the ground it has already been claimed by someone else, or is inappropriate she sizzles.

She is convinced there is a plot against her in the office of the Jockey Club. That the name of her selection is a brand name of some kind is holding it out for some owner of more consequence and influence. She is one of the Whitesons, or a Vanderbilts, or a Mr. Klees just wants to be contrary and that is a mean old thing.

Brother, if you think you have troubles enough to know Mr. Klees. He is a kindly obliging gentleman. He loves having American race horses neatly titled. But some lady owners would have you believe he takes no more delight in sitting up there at 250 Park Avenue blasting their happiest inspirations.

THE Jockey Club's authority over racing is not now what it was when racing was confined largely to the Atlantic seaboard and there were no legalized racing commissions. But the American Stud Book remains supreme. It is the record of racing blood lines in the United States the only thing of the kind in existence.

Without it there would be great confusion in the breeding industry. It is the Stud Book that maintains the importance and value of the thousands of race horses in this country. It is registered with detail. It goes back for generations. He has a large staff of young ladies assisting him in taking care of the files said to number nearly 400,000 case histories of horses.

Before a horse can be raced it has to have a name. An owner usually submits for each horse a number of names he fancies. Indicate his preference. On receipt of a list Mr. Klees consults his files and if there is no duplication or near duplication or inappropriateness a preferred name is allowed. Inappropriateness is a matter of judgment on Mr. Klees part. Rejection of a name or bad taste may bar a name for instance.

SOME owners go to great pains to select names for their horses the more melodramatic trying for names that suggest the sire and dam but without using any part of the paternal names, which is the easy way. As an example of a well named horse of the day I might mention Omiskiss, a recent winner at Empire City. He is out of a mare named Neglect and by Sire, is another.

Other owners name their horses haphazardly and without reference to the appropriate which has produced the charge that American horse names generally are the worst named in the world. Mr. Klees cannot be blamed for that. He deprecates the inappropriate and the obvious but the names are eligible there is nothing he can do about them.

Sometimes he suggests a name himself. He picked the name of Seabiscuit for the horse that has taken place in history as the greatest money winner of all time. Seabiscuit is by his title from which name of course came Seabiscuit. But the original owner of the horse while accepting the title of Seabiscuit never liked it much. Naturally if Seabiscuit had remained a plater the name might not have seemed so marvelous. A horse can make a name but a name cannot make a horse.

Anecdotes of Ohio

By GILBERT F. DODDS

An atmosphere of bitterness hung over Ohio political circles during early days of the Civil War due to attempts of "peace" Democrats to thwart war-making activities of Gov. David Tod.

Accused of interfering with enlistments and making treasonable utterances, Dr. Elton B. Olds and John W. Klees were arrested by order of the governor.

Dr. Olds retaliated with an affidavit by a Fairfield county grand jury. The case attracted nationwide attention. President Lincoln said publicly:

"Must I shoot a simple-minded soldier who deserts, while I must not touch a hair of the wily agitator who induces him to desert?"

Governor Tod was released on writ of habeas corpus. There followed suits against him by Olds and Klees for damages, but these dragged on until finally dropped.

New Hope

One line in the Democratic platform 25 years reads as follows: "The right to work compensation in both public and private employment is an inalienable privilege of women as well as men without discrimination of race or color." The Republican platform promises to further it.

This has given new hope to 70,000 women members of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's clubs who have been trying to remove discrimination against married women. They have been spurred by introduction of bills prohibiting employment of married women in state or private enterprise in 26 states since January, 1939.

Its arguments, based on a survey of married women work to earn money, need not to satisfy a whim.

The money they earn is good for business. The federal census shows that the average married woman member holding a job is between 40 and 49 years old, has no children under 16, and is not working because of the depression. Her own home and earns some $300 less annually than the unmarried working woman because she is not so well trained and has not worked so long.

REGISTRATION BILL READY FOR ACTION

Committee Announces Final Draft of Defense Act.

By The Associated Press
WASHINGTON, July 27.—The senate military committee today made public its final draft of a bill calling for the registration of military service of all men in the nation between the ages of 18 and 64.

The measure is scheduled to receive a formal committee vote of approval next Tuesday and will be taken up in the senate shortly thereafter. Administration authorities have said that if Congress passed the bill in August, they could make the registration in September and begin training the first contingent of 400,000 on October 1.

Using the day of registration—the date of which would be within the discretion of the President—as the date for determining age, the bill defines the phrase "between the ages of 18 and 64" as meaning men who have reached the 18th anniversary of the day of their birth and who have not reached the 64th anniversary of the day of their birth.

JUST THINGS

By EDNA S. DUTTON

"Mothers?"

THEY were in their pre-teen age but playing lady and were showing off their grown up clothes to the nth degree. They were thrilled with their importance and the notice they were attracting and when one on looker opened a conversation they gave him their collective attention.

You all look like little mothers which ones are the children? he queried. We all ARE mothers responded the spokesman but we certainly don't want any children.

His Idea

MAYBE he heard it from his elders and maybe he was speaking his own honest convictions but a lad of tender years left one lady speechless with his forthright comment. Halted at the curb by the cars following a pair of newlyweds and giving them the works in the way of horns whistles, etc. the young man made the most of his want age point took it all in and got a great kick out of it. The lad at his side a stranger also was taking it in. Another sucker he commented as he took the go sign.

Potpourri

ARE you taking your quota of salt tablets these hot days? We're not going to talk about the weather, it's beyond the printed word. We're wondering what happened to the poor little dog (he looked like a thoroughbred) who was jumping around hysterically and barking frantically because he was shut up in a hot automobile. Registering the men for compulsory military training has its problems. One married woman is worrying about how she will meet the payments of the house if her husband has to go to war and her spinster friend bemoans the fact that her chances of landing an unsuspecting husband will be cut down. So there you are.

Good News for Queen Olga—While Lillian is Assigned to Stand Guard Over the Snooping Olina.

AS WE listened to Lillian's plea to be permitted to keep Olina from leaving her room while her mother was inspecting her restored emerald necklace we realized that she was telling the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth when she chose the task of watching Olina instead of witnessing the restoration scene.

There is a strong sentimental streak in Lillian and I knew that she would have enjoyed watching the surprise and joy of our royal guest when she saw her fabulously valuable jewels. But stronger than almost anything else in her makeup is her joy in the doing of a difficult task. We saw that she was positively reveling in the task my father had outlined.

Have it your own way, my father said at last. And I leave all the details to you. But we must get this phase of the affair over for we have more important things to face.

Lillian's Assignment
We all knew what he meant. Jack Leslie must even now be plotting the terrible revenge he meant to take for the complete defeat he had suffered less than an hour ago. Ultimate victory would be my father's. I was sure for he held all the cards in his hands now. But I knew that Leslie's eyes and his partial insanity would lead him to actions which no man might predict.

Margaret! My father turned to me. Will you and Lillian go to Queen Olga's suite now, please. Tell her Margaret that I wish to see her for a few minutes. If she will be so kind and bring her back with you. Her daughter, Lillian, I will leave to your ingenuity.

Lillian sprang from her seat, snapped her hand smartly to her side.

Florida Prepares for Another Tourist Season, Although War Clouds Outlook

By The Associated Press
ST. PETERSBURG Fla.—The current world crisis has spotted the outlook for Florida's 1940 tourist season with uncertainties, but barring actual American involvement in war, the general expectation is for another huge influx such as was experienced last winter.

This smokeless factoryless industry which is estimated to bring the state $300,000,000 or more per season is extremely sensitive to changes in economic conditions and world trends and Floridians follow developments with keen anxiety.

Construction Rate High
Whatever the turn of events winter will find the state well prepared for a bumper tourist crop. Following upon last season's high influx of visitors and sharply increased summer tourist trade, building activity is proceeding at a brisk pace as preparations are made to accommodate still more people next winter.

Construction is going forward in Miami and Miami Beach at the rate of more than $2,000,000 a month. Miami Beach with a permanent population of 27,340 had $23,300,000 worth of new construction started in May alone.

A large proportion of this building consists of hotels and apartment houses. State records show that 90 per cent of hotel and apartment house construction in Florida is centered in the lower east coast area, the so-called Gold Coast.

Building activity here and at other resort areas is less pronounced but is well ahead of 1939.

FELLOWSHIP CLUB CLOSING TO DAY BIBLE CONFERENCE

The Central Ohio Young People's Fellowship club last night closed a 10 day Bible conference at the Chautauqua pavilion. Announcement was made that the club will sponsor Dr. Arthur I. Brown of Vincennes, B. C. in a series of meetings Sept. 1-15 at the pavilion.

Rev. Clifford Hollifield of Fort Wayne Ind. conducted the service. In addition to telling his life story, From Newsstand to the Pulpit, he delivered an evangelistic sermon in which he said: "Only a fool would say there is no God. It is one thing to believe in a supernatural being and another to know how to approach a supernatural being."

Motherhood Film at Ohio

"The Fight for Life" To Be Shown for Six Days Beginning Monday.

"The Fight for Life," made by Pare Lorentz from Paul de Kruif's important book of the same name, Monday will start a six-day run at the Ohio. It will follow this week-end double-feature bill of "Free, Blonde and 21" and "Girl in 313."

Lorentz first won acclaim with his documentary hits, "The River" and "The Plow That Broke the Plains."

"The Fight for Life" is a drama of the miracle of motherhood. Against a background of squalid tenements, Lorentz tells a story of life and death, of the courageous fight of modern medicine to prevent the tragedy of young mothers dying while their children are born.

The musical score, which has won highest praise of critics for its perfect background setting, was done by Louis Gruenberg, composer of the opera, "Emperor Jones."

Myron McCormick, Storrs Haynes, Will Geer and Dudley Digges play the chief male roles. In addition to Dorothy Adams, Dorothy Urban and Effie Anderson more than 100 actual doctors, nurses, students and lay people play their own lives before Lorentz's camera.

Lynn Bari and Mary Beth Hughes are the duo of loveliness featured in "Free, Blonde and 21," the picture now showing through Sunday. Heading the male cast are Henry Wilcoxon, Robert Lowery and Alan Baxter. Miss Bari, a cultured girl, falls in love with Wilcoxon, a distinguished doctor. Miss Hughes finds the devotion of his assistant, Lowery, inadequate and takes up with a stranger, Baxter, who can provide fun and luxury. The other picture on the bill, "Girl in 313," offers Florence Rice, Kent Taylor, Lionel Atwill and Katharine Aldridge in a story showing how diamond companies, to protect themselves from robbers, sometimes are forced to use go-betweens who are not much above the criminal level themselves.

"The Mortal Storm" To Be At Palace for Three Days

James Stewart, Margaret Sullivan and Robert Young Starred in Drama of Divided Family.

The motion picture version of "The Mortal Storm," Phyllis Bottome's powerful novel of a family divided by political dissension, will be the Palace feature attraction for three days, starting Sunday.

A sterling cast, starring James Stewart, Margaret Sullivan and Robert Young, was assembled for the film, and Frank Borzage, one of the great directors of the industry, was assigned.

The supporting players include Frank Morgan, Irene Rich, Maria Ouspenskaya, Bonita Granville, William T. Orr and Robert Stack. The concentration camp sequence was pieced together from the shattered lives of refugees, 18 magazine clippings, two uncensored articles and the experiences of a film director.

Wednesday Feature
Akim Tamiroff, Gladys George and William Henry head the cast of the Wednesday feature, "The Way of All Flesh." Basically, it's the drama of a man whose entire life has been lived in rigid conformity with his own steadfast, fanatical belief in the highest moral standards in behaviorism, who recklessly disregards these principles to revel in a mad round of self-indulgence. Tamiroff plays the man and Miss George is cast as his devoted wife. Muriel Angelus, talented English player, is cast as the unprincipled adventuress who lures Tamiroff to his downfall.

Two feature pictures have been booked for the Thursday-Saturday bill, "Saps at Sea," starring Laurel and Hardy, and "Sporting Blood," a drama of the southern race track.

Laurel-Hardy Film
"Saps at Sea" finds Laurel and Hardy as a pair of horn testers in a musical instrument factory. Hardy goes berserk after continued testing of D flat horns and Stan is advised by a physician to take him on a sea voyage and keep him on a diet of goat's milk. They engage a boat that is destined to sink if it goes out to sea, so they remain in port and get mixed up with gamblers. Maureen O'Sullivan and Robert Young are the romantic twosome.

Another of the fantastic "Invisible Man" pictures suggested by H. G. Wells' tales, this one "The Invisible Man Returns," will be brought to the Marion screen Sunday for two days, on a double bill with "The Farmer's Daughter," a comedy featuring Charlie Ruggles and Martha Raye. The bill will be given a midnight preview tonight.

Sir Cedric Hardwicke, Vincent Price and Nan Grey head the cast of the invisible man tale, with Price in the title role. The story is of a man, condemned to death for the murder of his brother, who escapes from prison after being made invisible by the doctor who holds the secret formula. The invisible man's cagey efforts to trap the criminals actually responsible for the murder provide the action. Setting of the Ruggles-Raye comedy is a summer born theater in the east.

Edmund Lowe and Margaret Lindsay are starred in "Honey-moon Deferred," which will be shown Tuesday and Wednesday. The honeymoon of Lowe, a private detective, is interrupted by the violent death of his boss. Miss Lindsay plays the bride who helps her husband solve the case.

The other picture on the bill will be "One Hour to Live," a melodrama featuring Charles Bickford and Doris Nolan in a story of the inside workings of police criminal identification bureaus.

"Gangs of Chicago," with Lloyd Nolan, Barton MacLane, Lola Frontiere. Nolan plays a brilliant Lane and Ray Middleton will be shown Thursday through Saturday on a bill with a Bill Elliott of his pal.

NOW is the TIME to MODERNIZE-REMODEL-BUILD your own HOME

Heating and Insulation Studied in Federal Housing Experiments

House too hot in summer, too cold in winter? The best way to heat it? Many other questions studied by the bureau of building in Washington, conducting an interesting experiment on heating and insulation.

Nine furnaces are available to test fuel, and the temperature of the house rises and falls as gas, electricity, fuel oil, coal, wood and other fuels are fed into the heating units.

These experiments in heating are the result of a demand on the part of builders and the general public for information about house construction and heating. The bureau of standards has requests for information along these lines and felt that exact knowledge was needed.

Spokesmen of the building industry predict that the result of these comprehensive studies will be better heated and better constructed homes as well as a general improvement in the American housing standard.

Simple Beauty Shown in Small Home

This design (The Overton) illustrates that a home does not have to be large to be livable and comfortable. Although the rooms are small the floor plan is well arranged, affording two bedrooms and a dinette as well as the living room and kitchen. It is designed along Cape Cod lines, proving that modern architects appreciate the simple beauty of that style. The attached garage is a desirable feature. (Courtesy National Plan Service Inc.)

Methods Suggested for Control Of Carpet Beetles and Other Pests

Although spring housecleaning is just a memory the alert homeowner checks the valuable articles stored in trunks and closets at regular intervals through the hot months. For pests that breed and cause serious damage thrive best in dark closets, trunks and storage rooms.

Such ravages are caused by carpet beetle larvae according to a recent bulletin on the subject issued by Dr. R. W. Leiby, extension entomologist at Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y. The pestiferous carpet beetle thrives happily in seemingly inaccessible places, says this expert, warning the homeowner to watch out for soiled carpets, baseboards which are not tight to walls, cracks in flooring and corners of rooms and staircases that are not cleaned regularly.

Each year after the epidemic of spring housecleaning Dr. Leiby receives hundreds of samples of the fuzzy brown worms which have been routed from their hideaways.

Cleaning Helps

Regular removal of dust and lint by a vacuum sweeper helps to control and prevent an infestation. Incidentally, it is most important to empty and brush that cleaner bag particularly through the hot weather. The sweeping should be aimed especially at the edges of carpets at floor cracks at baseboards and at the corners of carpeted stairs. A hand attachment to the sweeper will pick up exposed larvae, as well as dust and lint.

Urging careful attention to baseboards, Dr. Leiby states that it is possible to kill carpet beetle larvae with an oil spray containing pyrethrum such as a good fly spray provided it is applied heavily and comes in contact with the larvae. Such a spray may be applied more effectively from a machinist's oil can.

The removal of carpet beetles from homes can be accomplished in most instances only if one or more methods of control are adopted, says the entomologist, warning against cracks in floors and soiled carpet cushions and linings.

Dr. Leiby gives this advice: Clothing or rugs stored in closets and trunks can be protected by scattering the crystals of paradichlorobenzene or flake naphthalene in rolled rugs or on sheets of paper placed between layers of clothing in tightly closed trunks or closets, about one pound of

COMPLETES BIOGRAPHY
By United Press

SEATTLE, Wash.—A 70-year-old widow has just brought out her first prose volume. From Oxnard to Airplane, Mrs. Minnie Roof Dee completed the work while attending an adult education class in short story writing. As she completed each chapter she would read it to the class and hear unflinching frank criticism. Her previous literary efforts included several books of verse and a song, but, from Oxnard to Airplane—a biography of the late George H. Himes, Oregon trail pioneer—was her most ambitious undertaking.

INSECTS IN METERS
By United Press

HOUMA, La.—Insects that can cut off natural gas quicker than an old-fashioned quinine-in-the-slot meter have been nesting in the regulators of meters in Houma homes. Inspector Leon Slimpin reports that the insects resembling small wasps have made a general invasion of local homes causing many residents to complain about unceremonious discontinuance of their service. Removal of the insects from the meter regulators requires only a minute or so, however, Slimpin found.

STORING MOPS

To avoid the danger of fire developing from mops and oil rags stored in a closet authorities advise putting cord loops on the ends of the mops and brooms and hanging them on hooks in a utility room, or back hall, or on the rear porch. If poles are cut near the top of the door or about a half inch is cut from the top and bottom of the door to allow for ventilation the mops may be safely kept in a closet.

CLOCK WATCHERS THRILLED
By United Press

BUFFALO, N. Y.—Clock-watching employees at City Hall were almost convinced their day had come. Entering their offices in the morning they took their initial glance at the office timepieces and then looked again in disbelief. The hands of the clock were ticking off minutes with each passing second in no time at all the days working hours came to an end. No one left his office, however—it seems they were fixing the master clock which was undergoing necessary repairs.

SAWDUST SUBSTITUTED FOR SAND IN CONCRETE

ST. PAUL.—Concrete made with sawdust instead of sand has been developed at the University of Minnesota.

Searching for materials to give ordinary concrete the advantages of lightweight, cheapness and high insulating value the agricultural engineering division has found sawdust the most promising. L. W. Neubauer, assistant in agricultural engineering who supervised the tests, said that for certain uses, where great strength is not demanded and where weathering is not severe, clean aspen, spruce or Norway and Jack pine sawdust make a fairly satisfactory substitute for sand and gravel.

other buildings is a further safeguard against fire from without.

Q What are fireproofs?

A The space between studs when left open from top to bottom acts as a flue so that a fire which might occur in the lower part of a house might easily be drawn up with the walls. As a safeguard against such spread of fire a fireproof is made by closing these spaces with wood blocks or some incombustible materials.

Q Our house is old and does not have many electric outlets. Is it dangerous to have a number of lamps draw power from one floor outlet?

A It could be. Now that so many electrical appliances are in common use—radio, phonograph, sewing machines, picture projectors, curling irons, heaters and so on—and multiple receptacles are available at any dime store particular care should be exercised not to overload a circuit. Under no circumstances should fuses be replaced with others of higher resistance. The use of penknives in fuse sockets is foolhardy as it creates a definite fire hazard.

Building Quiz

Question—I have a red brick colonial home and a friend told me I should have a couple of Euonymus vines but could not tell me the name of the one that climbs and has red berries on it in the fall.

Answer—The fruiting form of the wintercreeper or Euonymus is Euonymus alatus. May I suggest that you be sure to plant two or more vines since they seem to fruit a little better than vines planted singly.

Q Is landscaping eligible?

A The ground on which the building stands may be improved by grading, laying walks, building fences and planting.

Q What causes most fires in houses?

A Most conflagrations in houses are caused by overheated or improperly built flues, defective electric wiring, carelessness in the use of matches and cigarettes, and spontaneous combustion.

Q In building a house, what are the most important considerations for fire prevention?

A The essentials are good fireplace and chimney construction, proper separation and insulation of wood framing from chimney and fireplace, proper installation of heating systems and electric wiring and construction of fire-stops between the studs of frame houses. The use of fireproof or fire-resistant materials for outside walls and roof is a protection from fire from outside the house. Where practicable the location of the house at a distance from

Objections To Summer Paint Job Answered

The five common objections to summer painting are met with arguments by Lawrence H. Bradley, who seeks to overcome the opposition in an article appearing recently in The National Painters Magazine.

The usual objections, he declares, are that people want painting done before insects make it necessary to put up screens that shrubbery and flower beds are injured when a house is painted in summer that bugs stick to wet paint that painting in summer months is bad on general principles, and that painters are a nuisance around the house any way.

Suggests Use of Props

In answering these objections, the writer asserts it is possible and practical to paint windows of a house without taking down all of the screens at one time. Props can be used on the screens to facilitate window painting.

To meet the fear of injury to shrubs and flowers, the writer says the painter should be equipped with notched pegs and light Manila rope with which to hold back plants. The painter should also have lightweight drop cloths for placing over trees and shrubs.

Bugs do stick to paint, it is admitted, but bugs are a problem in the fall as well and the actual

MARKET MAKES NO PROGRESS

Buyers and Sellers Both Stand Timidly on Sidelines Today.
 By The Associated Press
 NEW YORK, July 27.—Buyers were shy and sellers equally timid in today's stock market with the net result a large-sized gooseneck so far as real trends were concerned.
 A persistent heat wave and general speculative apathy drove the majority of customers to the country and those who were courageous enough to put in an appearance found little inspiration to do much either way.
 The volume of around 100,000 shares was the smallest for any Saturday since Aug. 3, 1918.
 Brokers said the European war continued as the main market handicap. In addition there were doubts regarding the forthcoming tax burden on industry plus the inability of many analysts to reach a definite conclusion regarding the nearby course of business and the presidential campaign.
 U. S. Steel was resistant as talk was heard of directors voting another $1 dividend on the common at next Tuesday's meeting.
 Holding fairly well throughout were Youngstown Sheet & Tube, Bethlehem Steel, Chrysler, Sears Roebuck, Glenn, Marlin, Curtiss-Wright, Anaconda Kennecott and N. Y. Central.
 Backward were U. S. Rubber, Philip Morris, General Electric, Texas Corp., Republic Steel and North American.
